SAINT ALPHONSUS LIGUORI

“I am Saint Alphonsus Liguori.

Character has several meanings to every man, woman and child. One’s character oftentimes immediately shows what an individual believes in, practices, or condones for others to accept. Character, in its importance, oftentimes gives to others strength, hope, endurance, practicality.

Today is an important day, as every day is in the life of a human being, because as dawn awakens thousands and thousands and thousands of individuals of all ages, what must never be forgotten is the fact that every life has an effect on others’ lives in some way, some degree, for some reason.

Children are not being instructed on what their actions, their attitude does to another human being. So much is taken for granted, and so much sound reasoning is lost, because of the indifference human beings have towards how they affect each other.

My Words reflect The Father’s Will, because as each action of a human life affects another one, the Soul is a recipient of what occurs, thus making it two Souls: the One Who is the One of who speaks or acts, and the One of who receives the intentions, the purpose, the subject, or the problem, plus many other things.

We see so many men, women throughout the world studying so many subjects, and so few truly take into consideration all they are responsible for as an individual, and what effect they have on other people’s lives through the unwritten words, because much is passed from one to another through appearance, expressions, speech and, of course, just the very actions sometimes affect another one's life more than it shows.

As I bless you, I beseech you to be good example in all you think, say, do, practice, because do not forget, when two or more individuals are in the same area, one life affects another one in some form, some degree, some way. So be it.”
