SAINT CATHERINE OF SIENA

“I am Saint Catherine of Siena.

Too little is being done in instructing the young on the importance of the Commandments of God. Too much is being tolerated on impurities, indignities, and all forms of vile speech and contemptible attitude on decency regarding how an individual acts morally. Immorality is acceptable, and so oftentimes practiced under the guise of it being normal, natural.

Today as I speak, I speak with deep love, great concern and hope, that in many places throughout the world, those who are in charge of instructing others on moral values, moral standards, moral obligations, will find the path of being able to penetrate the mind, the interpretations, the values, the ideals and the will of millions of individuals, because it is important for human beings to not just rationalize what is correct, proper, pure, decent, but to apply all their thoughts, words, deeds, habits, to seek purity and value what a Gift of Divine Love this can be in one's actions, inner actions, goals.

I could speak hours on this one subject, but it is important that this subject be covered in every age group of human life, because it is necessary to remind, to alert, to speak on what is correct, what is moral, what is acceptable, instead of just allowing one's self to be the recipient of what another individual takes for granted, or is abusive in conduct.

I could speak so many Words, but The Father has requested that as so Many of Us deliver certain Subject Matter, We keep It to a length where it is not too tedious for some to read, and to understand the full brunt of the Subject Matter. So be it.”
