

TEACHING DELIVERED THROUGH FRANCES M. KLUG
ON JUNE 11, 1984 AT 6:00 P.M.

“Though my life, to the world, appears to have been in vain, I secretly look into my heart’s loves and ways, and I say to God:

*‘T*hough in man’s ways I have failed, I feel that You, and only You, know what direction was meant by every move I made.

*‘P*lease, God, do not feel I want praise, but I want You to know that everything I did, everything I said, was hopefully to please only You, to be a credit to Your Gift of life and become a Saint, in spite of my weaknesses man’s way.

‘I love You, God, I want You to know this. I write and say it, so there can be no doubt between Us, that though man may say and feel my life was in vain, Our closeness deepened because of my little ways; not for the great things men would recognize, but for the little things I did and gave in Your Name and Your Name alone’.”
