

“DON'T DISMISS THESE POSSIBILITIES”

Very often the condition of our Soul has a way of showing itself through our way of life, our actions, our thinking, our acceptance of good or evil, our attitude in everyday habits, our ability to cope with love from others or adversities.

A periodic examination of one's own behavior, of one's own conscience in how one lives according to God's Rules, should be done with reverence and obedience to God's Commandments, knowing that these Rules have and are the Guidelines for the benefit of one's Soul.

What habits do I have that are insulting to other people?

What habits do I have that are obnoxious to other people?

What about my ego and/or my superiority, does it supersede my sincerity, honesty, love, or does it hide behind a facade of indifference, coldness and/or a petty attitude?

Do I abuse others by my lack of patience, lack of understanding, my arrogant cutting remarks, lustful accusations and/or actions, fits of criticism, indecency in my words or actions, disrespect for or on others' behalf, belittling remarks, fits of unjust anger, abusive indignity, incorrigible, unkind, abusive insults that are degrading to another's intelligence, good name?

Am I insanely jealous, for no reason except my own insecurity?

Am I intimidating because I am arrogant or insecure, jealous without reason, unreasonable in my attitude, accusing through jealousy or by nature?

Am I mature, understanding, careful how I treat others?

Am I selfish, sneaky, curious, unduly inquisitive, secretive, just to save my own neck?

Am I possessive, controlling, stealing the rights of someone else, or their freedom of choice, conscience, will?

Do I act consciously, or just act indifferent to the consequences of my actions?

Do I ever consider obedience to God’s Commandments as my responsibility and obligation to uphold them with dignity, honor, understanding, in the purpose they were given to obey?”